

Precisely half of the accounts of the dinner were downright CRYPTICAL - and there was a whole extra set table that nobody sat at! What's worse, someone made off with one of Merlin's most priceless possessions!

The following members of the court were eating dinner: Arthur, Gawain, Lamorak, Merlin, Galahad, Bedevere, Perceval, Calogrenant, Bagdemagus, Tristan, Sagamore, Lancelot

- 1.-Arthur sat Lamorak across the table from himself, and Merlin as his right hand man.
- 2.-A weapon of a mounted warrior, with fate ahead of him! - he had the green curry.
- 3.-The knight eating french toast has a fork but his neighbors do not.
- 4.-Galahad failed to negotiate a spoon from his neighbor, the banana eater, who had an extra.
- 5.-Harem grub lasciviously was being eaten next to the spot with fish and chips.
- 6.-The place setting with as many knives as the rest of the table combined would, with violent urgency, err.
- 7.-Merlin never needed utensils, and yes, he played with his food - Tristan, right across the table, thought that weird..
- 8.-The knight who had fish and chips wishes he had a fork or a knife, but he does not.
- 9.-Bedevere had one of 9 total spoons at the table, but no mashed potatoes.
- 10.-A long story, and in addition was the only one person at the table with a non-redundant, full place setting (fork, spoon, and knife)
- 11.-The knight who dines on a hamburger, in part, hurries.
- 12.-Belonging to Lamorak and the knights sitting to his left and right, there were five spoons.
- 13.-Perceval was pleased with himself for ending up with double spoons so that he could do his hanging spoon trick.
- 14.-A certain knight eating a burrito - after bed, was always with energy.
- 15.-Bagdemagus loved sitting between Merlin and Calogrenant.
- 16.-The spot next to Bedevere with the extra spoon was a healthy getaway - mostly a slum, me.
- 17.-The salad eater was oddly morbid, but interwoven with even teflon.
- 18.-Strange homesteads atop the dish nestled between the burrito and green curry.
- 19.-The mashed potatoes was sitting across the table from someone with one utensil.
- 20.-The burrito-eater was nervous about sitting across from Bagdemagus, since he did not trust him with a knife.
- 21.-Gawain was glad there was one person sitting between him and the guy who was eating the salad with both hands.
- 22.-The knight who ate the sandwich was worried inside the gala hadn't begun.
- 23.-The knight who settled on fettucini, called back piece by piece of rack of lamb.
- 24.-Perceval's meal was inside of cabana, naturally.

Arthur	Perceval
Gawain	Calogrenant
Lamorak	Bagdemagus
Merlin	Tristan
Galahad	Sagamore
Bedevere	Lancelot